

Eastburn & Gray's Jonas and VanLuvanee recognized & McGowan spoke at seminar

B L U E B E L L /
DOYLESTOWN, PA — Marc Jonas and John VanLuvanee have been named as “Leaders in Their Field” in the Chambers USA 2014 Directory, published by Chambers and Partners.

VanLuvanee and Jonas, co-chairs of the firm’s land use practice group, were recognized in the field of Real Estate: Zoning/Land Use.

Jonas has extensive experience in real estate, land use, municipal law, and zoning matters. For more than 30 years, he has practiced land use and real estate law.

VanLuvanee handles zoning, subdivision and land development matters, as well as real estate transactional matters, for both developers and property owners.

DOYLESTOWN, PA – Kellie A. McGowan, Esq. served as a faculty member at the Land

Marc John Kellie A.
Jonas VanLuvanee McGowan

Use Institute 2014, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Bar Institute (PBI) on June 19, 2014 in Philadelphia. The Institute examines legal trends, updates in case law, regional development patterns, and regulatory changes impacting the Commonwealth both now and for years to come. McGowan’s seminar, “When do Applicants Need Off-Site Stormsewer Easements in Light of the Bretz Case?”, covered the issue of approvals for stormwater management systems, a required component of every land development project.

McGowan is a shareholder and practices in the firm’s Real Estate, Land Use and Zoning and Banking practice areas. ■